

Jorgue

(Letter to Dr. Cushing)
(typewriting)

5th Aug. 1912.

CUS417/52.82

From the Regius Professor of Medicine, Oxford.

Dear Cushing,

I enclose you the transcript of the letters in which Vesalius is mentioned. I have just heard from Klein of Munich that the German Association for the History of Medicine has decided to publish the anatomical plates and also the epitome.

Sincerely yours,

WM OSLER

Jorgue is just north of Lochmair. In Sutherlandshire north of Sutherland. very much part of Sutherland.

(House of Rhodri scholars trust)
So went together fishing in Loch Craigsie & Loyal

The huge mass of Ben Loyal rises in great rugged cliffs above the head of the Kyle and at the end (of the Kyle) the ruins of Castle Varrich by tradition the residence for Morison in the 11th century. One of the great battles between the northern chiefs between the Murrays & the MacLennans when the last man of the Murrays except in captivity was killed on the slopes of Ben Loyal.