Darlington Me.

Dear Cushing,

Thanks for telling me of Charles Good Utter. You certainly wish that Every man. Student would read it. This, in the present form is impossible. And the Student somewhere — a young M.D. — the strong brother under his hand, a constant stimulus to his mind and heart.

I await Leissner's review of the New Republic with interest. He never saw O, and has a distrust of a man I a fault — Yes, such an /us — and Charles. O. is the rarest of exceptions. His singular freedom from mistaken a /us in company in the past that he never thought of himself — It is self, self confidence which sets us into the worst

I hear of no movement in Bartsch's review, said by an informant to be diffused, and I am sure where it appeared.
Your family is as scattered as mine. S.
Arrived here this a. m. The copy of your O. you so very kindly sent me is in Boston but my copy will be at Liverpool at 8 o'clock in its place. My wife is going to read it soon.

An early delivery to your coming only.
In regard to some only as in 3 years generation

Very sincerely
yours
