OFFICE OF THE DEAN

December 28, 1925

Professor Harvey Cushing
Harvard Medical School
Boston, Massachusetts

My dear Dr. Cushing:

During the past quarter a large number of our students have been reading the Biography of Sir William Osler. Those who have the best minds and seem to be of the highest promise are precisely the ones who have shown the keenest interest in this book. It is clear that it is having a very great influence on them and that it will have a great influence on the character of the medical profession in the United States.

I want to join the group which I know is already very large of those who thank you for this great contribution toward the best interests of medical education and practice.

Yours very sincerely,

B. C. H. Harvey
