Dec. 6th, 1904.

(typewritten)

My dear Osler,

Very many thanks for your letter received this morning. The storm has cleared and the sun is shining brilliantly so that everybody feels happy. What a wonderful man you are. We had our first regular Faculty Meeting, since the receipt of your cheque, on Saturday last and I announced its receipt amidst expressions of great delight from all the members present. At the same time, Roddick read out like letters from Mr. Angus announcing the donation of $100, from Mr. Ross, of $200, and from Mr. Clouston, of $25. For myself, I do not want to be much behind you and yet it so happens that my money is rather badly tied up at the present time so that I cannot honestly make any announcement as yet. But, if others help in the same measure, we shall have enough to publish a detailed catalogue of much more than the circulatory system.

L.M.C. is away at Woodstock just now. She has been rather run down this autumn and in need of a rest. She writes, however, that she is feeling very much better.

With very hearty thanks,
