

Dear Harvey:

CVS417/88.2

I remember that trip with great pleasure. Dr. Osler wanted a little outing and, as usual, desired to share it with someone else, and out of the kindness of his heart took me with him.

The two objectives were (1) Richmond and (2) William and Mary College in Southern Virginia.

In Richmond we paid a visit to old ^{Dr.} Hunter McGuire, and he and Dr. Osler had a delightful chat. After this visit we called on George Ben Johnston and had a nice talk with him. You will recall that there was great rivalry, in fact probably enmity, between the McGuire school and the Johnston school at that time. It was characteristic of the Chief that he should visit both men.

Dr. Osler enjoyed immensely the visit to William and Mary College, revelling especially in the contents of the Library of the College and talking with those on the ground regarding its interesting history.

Yours sincerely,

L.F.B.
