

(Letter to Edward Milburn, Esq.)
(typewritten)

March 26th, 1907.

13, NORHAM GARDENS,
OXFORD.

Dear Ned:-

I am surprised that you have not received a copy of my address. I will write about it at once to the publisher.

The shaking you speak of seems to be rather of the nature of writer's cramp causing the pen to stick. It might be well every night to bathe the hand in very hot water and then rub the fingers thoroughly and the spaces between the bones at the back of the hand where the interossei are, with sweet oil. I do not think it is anything about which you need be specially anxious.

You will have noticed about my mother's death. It was very unexpected. She had been surprisingly well

Love to all at home,

Sincerely yours,

WM OSLER

P. S. Have I sent you a recent photograph ?
