Dear Ogden,

I was very glad to see your mother before she sailed and to find her in such good condition. I wish you could have been here this summer. We had a wonderful gathering in London. I remember Miller quite well - a wandering Jew indeed. We have just returned from Scotland with Revere who killed his first salmon, to his great delight. Send us word please how your mother stood the voyage. Love to Frances and the children.

Yours,
W.O.
