

(From secretary's notebook)

(To Dr. Galt)

April 6, 1914.

Dear Dr. Galt,

This osteopathic treatment is a form of massage & generally in the hands of very educated men. I do not believe there is anything more in it than skillfully applied massage & in the United States they do not hesitate to use it for anything from measles to meningitis.

Kinid regards.

Dr. Galt,
Collingham, E. York
