

From the Regius Professor of Medicine, Oxford.

To Sir John MacAlister.

7, April, 1914.

Letter (Typewritten)

Dear MacAlister,

I called yesterday, but you had not come back from lunch. I could not get up in time for the meeting on Friday. I have brought the back numbers of "The Modern Hospital" and will continue to send them; also two other books that were on the list. I will look in some day this week.

I am having the Presentation Addresses here nicely engrossed and illuminated to send to Gorgas.

Sincerely yours,

Wm. O.
