Dear Adami,

I had a very sympathetic letter from Keogh about the College of Surgeons scheme. I think the College could discount the possibility of a big army museum and do the work on the understanding that at any time the Millbank Museum could have selections of teaching specimens.

Why could not Martin take over Gurd^{*} on his staff at the King George? M. is laid up at present, but I have dropped him a line, and you perhaps could see him in the course of a few days.

Sincerely yours,
Wm. Osler.
