Oxford, England,

March 15, 1916.

Dear Mac:-

I have had no word from Appletons about the new contract. It is quite reasonable on our part to ask 20%. I have had offers - one recently - for a book on diagnosis at 25%.

I have some additional corrections for the new printing - minor ones - which shouldn't take long.

It is splendid for your father to come over here, but I hope he will not think of crossing to France. We shall be glad to see Leask if he turns up. I was knocked out for a couple of weeks with a heavy cold, but am all right again. I haven't heard a word of Benbow. You know he had nephritis. I have good news of Jack, but he would prefer to be in the fighting line again.

Much love to you and Amy.

Sincerely yours,

W. Osler.
