

April 20 1913

26 VI 18

CUS 417/125.13

Admission on the ground on a new piece "Sufficient unto the day" "Sunder and the last day of life" - an old truth with a new face newly.

There is nothing particular new in this theme more is it difficult to trace W.O.s our personal attachment to the subject. Was the fulfilment of the home where Sir Spencer Wells used to live at Golden's Green is the motto "Do today's work today," and few children were told to Mavis put off until tomorrow or. But there is more in W.O.s idea than this for the best " " " " suggests something about the morning which it is something he never permitted himself to do.

The first review says The profession might find a reader who can, without affectation, the great lay sermons which on such topics might not be ashamed to have written.

~~The copy of his library copy, occurs the poem under the fly leaf.~~

of "Greatest Oct 1911" p 970

THE SALUTATION OF THE DAWN

Listen to the Exhortation of the Dawn!
Look to this Day!
For it is Life, the very Life of Life.
In its brief course lie all the Varieties and Realities of your Existence:
The Bliss of Growth,
The Glory of Action,
The Splendour of Beauty.
For yesterday is but a Dream
And Tomorrow is only a Vision;
But Today well served makes Every Yesterday a Dream of Happiness
And every Tomorrow a Vision of Hope:
Look well therefore to this Day!
Such is the Salutation of the Dawn!

(by whom) sent me 26. VI. 18 by de Havilland Hall to whom they were given by a remarkable woman, Mrs. Jacoby about whom see a clipping in Maeterlinck's little book on death. If another reprint is called for put this on this page.

W. Osler.

"Words in Pain" / etc.