Road maps.

There is much money to the publisher of proper motor itineraries of this country, combining the delightful features of the old road maps with the hotels and country houses named and marked, ~~and such modern aspects as gradients~~. . . . A really helpful and satisfactory modern road book does not exist, not one to be put in comparison with my friend Theodore de Mayerne who, when a medical student of 19, issued one of the first and the best in Europe (1599).
