Dear Streeter,

About your Guainerius blazonry, Gordon Duff who is most learned in these things, has not been able to find any trace of it. I enclose you his letter.

Such a great disappointment to me that you did not come to England: I was hoping to tap your brains about several things in my library. I enclose you a list of books I had out this week for the Classical Association to look at.

Sincerely yours,
W Osler
per CAS.

(the "Guainerius blazonry" refers to the emblazoned arms of a certain T.L. (question whether it was the device assumed in Italy by Thomas Linacre) on the title or first page of a copy of Ant.Guainerius, "Opera", Pavia, 1481 in ECS's copy. The arms were reproduced in color and submitted to Osler who passed the question on to the Gordon Duff.)
