My dear Henry

When I looked at the date of your last letter I am quite ashamed of myself not having written you before. Mrs Chaboillé called on me on her way down and told me you were all well. I fear very much my son gives you some unaisiness I wish you could make a good clerk of him and keep him hard at work. It would be far better for him if you could convince him than going in to the army but whatever you do for him I know you do it with the best intention. I shall always be under obligations to you for all the trouble and expense you have been at.

Mr Bell and his brother Robert are at the forges and are going down this week. Tell My dear Mrs MacKenzie that I shall pay her a visit about september. I could not go up before on account of my bees.

if this place was a gay place I would invite her down but it never was so dull as it is at present. My kind regard to her and her spouse and the little ones.

Will you be so good as to tell Alex that I have sent him 3 shirts by one of Mr erviews engagé of the name of piere Lamourow which I hope he has received I wrote him a few lines by him and that I will soon write him again.

Yours affectionately

Helen McKenzie
