Yours truly

Wednesday,

Feb 10th/11

Dear Edward.

It was just dear of you to telephone me last night, I was fearfully glad to hear you, although you were so very far away - I would have loved to have

2.
left my party and
gone by through the telephone - ^{but don't tell} but that would have been a
large order, would it
not? -

The roses were too
perfectly lovely for words - I cannot tell you how I loved them,
they were beauties.

3.

and I wore some of
them at my party
with some violets
I got too, and they looked "magnificent"

The party I think
went off well, but I think you always
hate your own efforts.

Edward Dearest I
do hope you will

4.
be able to come for Sunday, I do want to see you so very much.

We will have to go
for a walk, won't we?

Am is better today, I think, much & mutual
joy.

excuse this second
scrawl, but I am so busy I have to go and make out reports at the school this afternoon, which I absolutely loathe doing.

oh I forgot to thank you for the choice one cent valentine. I admire your taste! -

The other letter enclosed should have been posted about five days ago
but I forgot.

I got some lovely
things for my birthday

one perfect ^{6.} book from the family - a silver
felt buckle, and frame.
a brooch, some flowers.
money, another book
etc -

I feel so hopelessly
old - 21 - gracious!

I can do as I like
now anyway. whether
that is an advantage

I don't know - and hoping to see you on Sunday
Somuch love to you
ever yours
Louis Wick
