My dearest Lois

These two important days are finding me this year unprepared. Please do not punish me by getting another "Valentine" for my failure.

I am hurrying as much as possible and hope I can get back to celebrate yours and your mother's birthday on Friday evening.

Tomorrow I will call at the Post Office in case you have had time to drop me a line today. Nowadays I don't ever satisfy myself when I go to see you. I promise you that in looking forward to my visits I keep intending to be as nearly an angel to you as I possibly can but every time I come away kicking myself for not having been nicer. I do hope Darling that you are being lenient with me in your judgement. I can't help feeling that you are being almost too forbearing with me.

I had quite a successful day today. - Sold another small compressor, with good prospects of still another in the near future

I hope you have had a nice day and that you will not be unhappy tomorrow on account of my not having found time to send you some other remembrance beside this scrawl. Still Love you have all the Love I can send and best wishes

Yours. Edward She
