

Little patio
Sunday.

Dearest Edward.

Really the more I look at this place critically, the more beautiful the place seems.
The garden is so sweet, and the little path to the beach adorable, and the beach so nice. You could not help liking it - the weather except on the first day has been lovely, warm & fair - I do wish you could come down you would love to see the tabies on the beach, and certainly the air is refreshing we are all getting better colours. and it certainly is a rest for me.

We have spent such a happy Sunday so far. It is nice to be where everybody keeps Sunday, no golf or anything, and yet everybody is just as happy. I went to church with the Fleets this morning & the Presbyterian church we had a very nice little service -

I had tea with the ⁴fleets last night and they were so sweet to me, Mr Fleet is so kind, & was so anxious to get & do everything possible for Mother -

Mother had quite a bad boil on her leg lanced today She is at present resting in the hammock.

Jan has asked me to go & have afternoon tea on the beach, so I think I will take Alice with me

Veronica does not do badly, but she annoys Clare greatly which is a pity - Clare thinks her very rough -

Alice is sitting on the floor beside me reciting the story of "Snow drop & the Dwarfs" to herself.

Alice sleeps upstairs with me & John down stairs with Veronica she has the best of it I think.

Please send me any letters that come, will you? but not bills. you may see those.

Well dearie I wonder where you are today? I hope you are happy. I wish you were here.

Much love Lois.
