Dear Cousin Lois,

I am writing in the long hope that this letter may reach you, or someone who may send me news, as I have quite lost track of everyone. I have been working intensively for a year on the family history, going from my grandfather's tree of 1881, and have been to their houses and graves, and have birth, marriage, and death certificates, and masses of other information, for at least 300 years back! Most of the family legends are fallacious, but the reality is altogether fascinating. I wish to write it all up, for future generations, but I lack some crucial information, which I greatly hope this letter will help to uncover!

All best wishes,

Ed
