Department of Archives
4 December 1975

My dear Mrs. Winslow-Spragge:

I enclose Mr. Robert Michel's description of our Accession No. 2032 which consists of the negative copies of the British North American Boundary Commission pictures in George Mercer Dawson albums (2) which you presented to the Public Archives of Canada. The Xs under Dawson in Mr. Birrell's attached listing indicate the negatives we hold.

Now that the postal service has again become operative, it may be that the albums Mr. Birrell was to send to you will arrive. If they do not within the next ten days, it might be well to inform him of their non-receipt.

Most cordially yours,

John Andreassen
University Archivist

REFERENCE	ITEM / DOCUMENT	DATES	LOCATION
RM:jd 4 Dec. 1975	130 negatives (10 x 12.5 cm) of British North American Boundary Commission photographs. The original photographs are mounted in 2 albums which belonged to George Mercer Dawson, who served as geologist to the Commission and probably took many of the photographs himself. The album was deposited at The Public Archives by Mrs. Winslow-Spragge and negatives made from these photographs were sent by The Public Archives of Canada to the McGill Archives. 32 of the photographs are published in Mrs. Winslow-Spragge's Life of George Mercer Dawson, published in 1962. The photographs were the subject of an exhibit at The Public Archives of Canada in June 1975 entitled "Into the Silent Land," for which a printed catalogue is available. See also the Canadian Geographical Journal, October 1975. The attached list was provided by A.J. Birrell, Head, Acquisitions and Research Section, National Photography Collection. This list describes the photos in the Dawson collection as well as Boundary Commission photographs from other sources.	1872-4	Letter box with Dawson collection, R.G. 2

SUBJECT / OBJET Identification of North American Boundary Commission Photos.

The basic information on the attached list of titles was taken from the official caption list which accompanied the set of photos submitted to the Foreign Office and now located in the Public Record Office. Copies of this list and the photos are found in our accession 1958-206.

Supplementary information, found in the square brackets, was derived from research in the Boundary Commission papers in FO 5, from the letters of Samuel Anderson, and from the captions which appeared on the reverse or underneath the photos.

The dates assigned to the photos are not precise except in a few cases where the date was verified by outside sources. The most notable case of this occurs with the photos of the dead Crow Indians where the date of July 31 is given by both Millman and Dawson. The group of photos taken at the North West Angle is given as October since it was during that month that both Commissioners travelled to the Angle and they are in many of the photos. October seems to have been the first month that the Royal Engineers commenced work at the Angle but they continued until early the next year. Therefore, some of the photos taken there may be in November and December. The dates given in brackets are as close as can be determined and are based on written accounts of the movements of the survey teams.

The official FO list is deficient in many points. We have photos which do not appear on the list or in the FO photos. In some cases the photos differ (eg. #85) or are cropped so differently that they are difficult to identify (eg. #32). I was unable to discover the true number of the photo I have numbered 256.

Where the FO caption list misspelled place names I have left the spelling as it appeared.

1. The official list gives "Waterton Lake" as the title for 219 but the terrain does not fit that location. The Beach album refers to the location as "Milk River Lake" but there is no such place named on contemporary maps. The RCMP photos give Lac des Marons as the location. On only one contemporary map is there such a place indicated (V1/1004 1876, National Map Collection). This map shows two Lacs des Marons, the first of which lies in Canadian territory approximately 480 miles of Red River approx. 107° 50'.
