H. Poole Esq

Dear Sir

I thank you for the correction in your letter of today. I had misunderstood the description in your former letter. Perhaps the best way to correct it will be to brace or mark over the words "the highest" and interline or substitute the words, "a leading bed". This will read well enough, and I think express the fact. The statement that 31 & 7 are the highest occurs I think only in the first page. If you can do this I will be much obliged.

The disturbances of the beds on Druffs Gann, are I suppose a continuation of those which appear on the E side of the River above or Glasgow, and likely extend for a great distance parallel to the outcrop of the great conglomerate bed. You will meet them sometime in extending your workings to the Northward, but I hope not very soon. I would much like to see the place you mention, but ~~am~~ have so little time at present that I fear I Shall not be able I avail myself of your kind offer at least for some time

I am yours respectfully

W. Dawson
