Sir

I have just returned from my search after Euripterus - I spent three days with a man to assist in the quarries - and was rewarded with but one and some fragments -

I spent a couple of days last week after some large specimens - I knew of the corniferous - and brought home a Philips Astrea of three feet in diameter - another large coral (apparently) Michelimma Intermitta about 2 1/2 ft. - and some other fine specimens - I was also so fortunate - as to obtain the largest Calymene I have seen it is four inches long and three wide -

The Euripterus is nearly whole - one of the (Abolus?) is wanting but most of the small arms are preserved I have only seen one better -

Please say if I may send you a set including the large specimens I have described - and the Euripterus the latter must be high - when travelling expenses are included it will cost 20$ - but I suppose you would not require many fragments - so I will make it 15 - I have been offered ten dollars for the Trilobite - which I refused - but if you desire I will add it to the collection at that price - which will make the whole seventy five dollars -

Please let me hear from you soon

Truly yours

Edmund Hew
