

THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW,
NEW YORK.

April 28th 1853.

Rev. L. W. Dawson, D. D.,

Dear Sir:

We beg to ask if you cannot consent to write for us before June 15th an article not exceeding ten pages (4,000 words) on some topic of a popular character. If you can be persuaded to favour us, we shall be pleased if you will name to us the topic that you prefer, that we may avoid a double treatment of it.

Very truly yours,

A. L. Rice,

The first of your count concerns to write for us before it is an article not exceeding the page (two words) or more than of a popular character. If you can be persuaded to favor us, we shall be pleased if you will to us the truth that you prefer, that we may avoid a double mistake.

Very truly yours,

Wm. A. Rives
