

Whether my statements
can be depended on, as I must, as it were, blow my own trumpet, and they can vouch for my acquaintance
with classical literature, in general, and my knowledge of languages.

I shall ask, when I receive their document, Kings and Gaskaasi
to write with them and Jackson. It is decided that I must myself go to Ottawa
and seek an interview with Lord Sanddowne and some members of the government - some of them Fr. Renslas -

says we know me,
whether I know them
or not, and see what can be done. and I feel very sure
we shall succeed.
I have thought that as soon as I receive the document which Acadia has promised, I will send you a copy, and also a copy of my petition, and if you shall feel free to give it the weight of your college, they I shall be glad
and thank you,
if not, they there
will be no harm
done. Yours very truly Silas B. Rand

called the Faculte together. I read my petition, and I showed them a specimen of the Dictionary.
They are hesitating to draw up a petition in their own name and forward it in connection with mine. They cannot of course examine the book, but they are acquainted with me, and can say and all of them testify to my moral character,
