Sir William Dawson.

Dear Sir

I received a box from the West Indies last week, and my Father enclosed a few small curiosities, which he desired me to forward to you, and beg you to accept them as curiosities from the West Indies. The white artificial flower is made from scales of the flying fish. The wooden box contains a collection of sea shells, "natural color". The Galernum is a drink made by the natives of sugar, lime juice, juice of a fruit called quava, water and a little rum - The other bottles contain sauces for flavouring things to be used at table.

With kind regards for self and Circle

I remain

Yrs Faithfully

Dear Sir

I received a box from the West Indies last week, and my father enclosed a few small cisterns which he desired me to forward to you, and had you to accept them as cisterns from the West Indies. The white artificial flavor is made from scales of the flying fish. The wooden box contains a collection of sea shells, "natural color". The albumen is a drink made by the natives of sugar, lime juice, juice of a fruit called guava, water and a little rum - the other bottles contain essences for flavouring things to be used at table.
