

Slings

97 Mansfield St-

Feb 8 - 1886

Dear Sir W. Dawson,

I write to you
two weeks ago telling of the deep distress of a dear Brother because of the death of a sweet Child Mother, and his young wife. The blow seems to have stunned him, so that he is gropping in the dark, but wants to know of the great reality of the life eternal

I ask you to pray for him that he may find peace in believing in Jesus Christ - his nobility of character is very great, but lacked the one thing needful, he was in the meeting yesterday afternoon but I had no opportunity of getting the slip of paper put on your desk. It was he that helped you to put on your over coat at the close. his name is A. Brown

I am his wretched Sister, you may truly tell him his Mother still lives, and loves him, as her life here, was a preparation for her home in heaven, his wife was also a good woman, he is a Zealotman a very sensitive man, so your consolation must come from you, he does not know that I have asked an interest in your sweet words of comfort, and prayer - he is so dear to me

I thank you very kindly for the Book you sent, he sat with me, the evening we got it, and read it through from beginning to end, but he says he will read it again, it seemed to give him a firmer grasp of God, and his works, and wisdom - if he only had a sense of Gods love, that every drop in his better Cup was needed - not one was in vain, and what we do not know now we will know hereafter - Thropt's yours E. B. Lloyd