Dear Sir William Dawson

In my D. D. Class during the present Quarter I have taken a pretty wide course of study as the members of the Class are all old enough to appreciate it. As part of my preparation I read your Archæon, for the second time & found it a valuable help. What I would now like to ascertain is where can I get the results of investigation in the same line during the last twenty years or since Archæon was written. The subject has been allotted to me for next quarterly Review & I would like to be posted on the question as it stands today.

If you would kindly give me the above information & any hints which you think would be of use you would greatly oblige. I may say that your article in the S. S. Times was highly appreciated by all our teachers who found it most helpful. I am

Yours truly
