

Lowell, Massachusetts
25 Nov. 1887.

Sir Dawson.

My Dear Mr Dawson

Your kind note has reached me here, where I am working for a few days, before going back to my dear missions in Illinois.

It makes me doubly regret the impossibility of going to pay you my respects when passing through your city, as it was my intention.
But I was so overwhelmed by the dictates of my evangelical work, that it was absolutely impossible for me, to find an hour to visit the greatest Christian of this Continent.

You will like to know that The Good Master continues to do great things among my poor emigrated ^{country} men, in the United States.

This very week, here,
several of them have again broken the heavy & ignominious yoke of

The Pope, to follow
Christ

Please present my respectful salutations
to Mrs Dawson — &

Believe me
yours for ever ^{devoted}

L. Chiriquy
