Sir William Dawson,
Principal of McGill College, Montreal.

Sir,

Accept my thanks again for your kind interest in our enterprise. I shall write Monday to the gentleman you mention. I am sorry to have forgotten his name which is at my house.

Your promise to write something sometime on a scientific subject is very pleasing. If I might take the liberty of suggesting I should recommend some subject similar to that of the address, delivered in Montreal to the young men of the City recently, and published in the Educational

Sir,

I beg to thank you for your kind interest in our enterprise.

I am sure that the gentlemen you mention will be glad to have forgotten his name which is at my house.

Your promise to write something on the subject is very pleasing. If I might take the liberty of suggesting I should be glad to see your report on the subject in the future.

I am, Sir, very truly yours,
