To Sir William Lawson ++

Dear Sir - Infidels in our town, have assailed the character and Literary attainments of Prof. Clark Braden, who is now speaking against infidelity in our midst. They assert that no man of reputation has pronounced Prof. Braden's Book The "Problem of Problems" as an able work, in short they state publicly that his writings show no evidence of a literary character. I presume you have seen his Book, and as I have acted as manager for Mr. Braden during his lectures here, would be pleased to know your opinion of said work, and oblige yours most Respectfully
Alexander Campbell
