Wasp

Thank you for your letter and for assurance that it contains. I thank you that your paper is better to begin life in a moderate way with hope of improvement as the proceed and I am sure that neither hope nor fear have any extravagant views in these respects. It is better to me anything they have at the other part of the globe as a means of your improvement. I am sure that I can give you a what may come to you at an death I should not be held in this way except as far as its interest is concerned, and I have no doubt you will take a great interest in the affairs of his point especially in so far as it is actually reported intending to be immediately I hope you will be reached his name again as a purpose of your and help to them you in his name for his being expressed and the of his other steps taken addressed to him any means that may be found at his disposal unless of course abolition or the requirements of a new establishment.

I have like you been obliged to lay off claims of public but have endeavored to keep little property in improvement
