My dear sir,

Everything has gone to Washington and I have no doubt that the printer is at work on your memoir now; so the change will have to be made in proof. I meet with such strange delays in return of copy sent out for correction that I directed Mr. McGee, the acting Editor, to proceed at once with printing of memoirs. He at once put into the printers' hands several which had no figures and the first will be distributed to-morrow. We shall distribute the memoirs separately just as soon as each is ready. This will give prompt publication to the man who is prompt; those whom like to keep proof lying by them for sometime will have very sluggish publication.

I am

Sincerely yours,
