Sir J. W. Dawson
My dear Sir:

Chas. M. ...

I exceedingly regret that the article in our Magazine to which you refer should have given you just cause for complaint. Of course the responsibility lies mainly with our Editor-in-chief who superintends the publication - Prof. N. H. Winchell. I had not read the article until after my attention was called to it by your letter. But I fully understand your feeling on the matter & especially your unwillingness in the case to make any reply. I will write at once to Minneapolis & point out the expression treating all the rest of your letter as confidential. This is, I presume, what you desire & what is I think your due.

I judge from the initials that the notice came from Maroon & you doubtless are well acquainted with him. It is frequently necessary to look closely at his articles & I regret that in this case the objectionable expression escaped censorship. It is only you the supposition that he is the author.

I am much indebted to you for your late letter & am pleased to find that your opinion regarding the structure of the pyrites fossil agrees with mine.
I had not thought of its association with psaronium but am also obliged for that suggestion. In the time when work has compelled the postponement of further study but I hope soon to complete the examination

With kind regards believe me

Very truly yours
E. H. Clapp
