My dear Sir:

The little drawing you sent with the description of the specimen are now in the draughtsman's hands; and I will incorporate the description into my text. This will be printed sometime during the summer. I noticed the round bodies which you described, but could not, from the material I had, feel assured of their character.

Thanking you for your kindness in sending me the description and drawing. I remain,

Very truly yours,

Charles D. Walcott.
