My dear Sir:-

It was most kind of you to write so favorably of my notes on this Coal Field and I am sure my use of the ^{word} "unwilling" in the opening sentence under the heading Permian is not by any means the only one open to question. I am glad to have your comments on the matter as it has made me more alive to the bearing of the fossil remains north of New Glasgow, and I hope to collect many more in the spring. An old quarry shows many, though unfortunately generally much weathered. I should be glad indeed to submit any I may find to you. I had thought of submitting my paper in proof form to you, and doubtless would have asked to be permitted to do so had it not been for the severe illness from which you suffered at the time, and which I with so many more greatly deplore.

I have also to thank you for a copy of your address to the Am. Geol. Soc. at Boston in which I was greatly interested.

Yours Respectfully
Henry S. Fook
