

Mr Redpath

Nov 94

The Manor House,
Chislehurst.

November 9 x 94.

Dearest Sir William.

I am very to trouble you with another note - but, I must thank you for sending the last twenty-five copies of
"In Memoriam" for which I do most heartily -

I have written to Mr. R.
Dongale asking him if more can be spared for me so many friends will wish for them. Did I do right?

I hope so.

You will be sorry to learn I have had trouble in my establishment.

The wife of my good coachman has been ill for the last six weeks, typhoid fever carried her away last Saturday, she came to us as a bride, she leaves three wee children, her poor husband is in great distress, I know she was entered the better Home.

I hope Lady Dawson will forgive me for not writing more frequently to her, I should love to do so, but I have far too much to do in this way, compared with the rest.

I think she will be kind and write to me some day to tell me how all are.

I often think about dear Mrs Harrington.

With love to each

Believe me

Your grateful friend
Grace R. Elfrath.

I am quite ashamed to receive any thanks from The Corporation for anything I have done, I have only done what my loved husband would have done it is not my doing it is his.
I do not know if I should acknowledge their kindness, but, I thank them on his account.
