STONELEIGH,
ROCK FERRY

Feb. 18th

My dear cousins

Before leaving home
I must write a letter you on the near approach of the fiftieth anniversary of your marriage. It is a long time to look back,
many joys and sorrows
have marked the years,
but I am sure you
both feel the goodness

and many have washed them all. I am taking the opportunity of sending in a small box of small kindnesses to you and Miss, a small travelling chest which I hope will be useful in the home as well.
It is an eight day
It should reach you soon after you receive this. I may mention that the Customs duty

and freight have been paid here so hope you will have no trouble
The brown Maggie &
I am having a quantity
on Wednesday
This has been a stock ing winter & I have been much in the house with colds.
George joins in best wishes, also the girls.
I think one of them will write. Arthur is in London with

H. Cockburn for the Royal Soc. meeting to welcome Vanbrue.
I hope you will
excuse the writing, the little I do is mostly in pencil. Please give my love to Anna.
I must end now.
Yours affectionately
Jane Crow
