

22, Abchurch Lane,

London, E.C. July 21 1897

Dear Sir William,

Your note of the 6th has just reached me having been forwarded by Mr. Mott, who thought it was private, and did not open it.

I am very sorry indeed that this will probably cause you to be delayed in getting the information you want. I shall drop a line at once to the library and ask to have the number of "Sciences" forwarded by the first mail, and will also ask them to see to the matter of the Iowa Geological Survey.

I trust you may still receive "Sciences" in time to be of some use.

Mrs Redpath seems to me to be looking remarkably well; better in fact than I had ventured to hope for. She asked most particularly after Lady Dawson and yourself.

I am very sorry that your name health does not improve at Medis, and my hope that by this time you may be feeling decidedly better.

The international diary Conference here, has been a great success, but they (the Committee) kept me away from morning till morning, almost without intermission.

Very sincerely yours

Dr. J. William Dawson M.D.
