of Jugg-Gunny whose name leaves his room. I whose love of flirtation is so strong that his profession of religion has been sloughed more than once by his intimate association with ladies. Since I received your telegram telling me that Anna had remained in Halifax it has been the source of pleasant guesses as to which friend she was staying with. Lately my pick has had its fall. It is of little use my writing about it, before you receive this Anna will have left. I only hope Mr. Grumley will not recall the circumstances to his disadvantage, & that she has not gone with the Gouge's to Charlotte Levee. My objection to Pictou people no doubt has to bear the blame of what appears to me, as I see it now, a great imprudence. It is true if afterwards she was asked to go to visit any friend it would be a very good action; Charitably given in pity for her situation.

The heal continues here with only a little abatement yesterday (Sunday) from the effects of a Shunda storm on Saturday. I observe that at Halifax on Friday last it was 92°. here it was 97°. The garden is a complete wilderness of overgrown plants & weeds. & the buildings are silent as the tomb.

 Mr. Baynes could not heat the heat & is off again to Kamarsko.
 I am paying attention to our diet sparing no expense for fruit &c. & hitherto W. D. & I have been quite well only very lonely. Nearly every evening E. plays croquet with the Haultain's who have returned.
 There have been no letters for you for several days. The doves fly in twice daily when Hamilton calls for letters. I was over the Medical building

5. & tells me

the other evening I took out word to Mr. Hopkins that the it ought to be properly closed at night & the chips & shavings swept up before the workmen left. The paintings & plaster are all work. & it looks more promising towards completion than I had expected. W<sup>o</sup> Cole. & 10<sup>o</sup> — inspecting its progress the other day I don't say you may have seen the death of Major Campbell in one of the papers. It was a sudden call, In driving to Church on Sunday the 4th he fell against his son who was driving <sup>the</sup> ~~the~~ <sup>hyper</sup> ~~hyper~~ <sup>perceiving</sup> ~~perceiving~~ something was the matter immediately turned homunculus. While assisting him out of the carriage Major Campbell said "I feel better. I can manage alone," took a few steps towards his door. I felt I was near again conscious dying on Monday. It proved to be a combination of apoplexy & paralysis.

It is decided that the Coll. is to be supplied with Lakawana Coal at $6.60 per ton. The next bringing there is not yet arrived, so you will be here to decide if that is what you want for the house. The Swansea Coal is $7.75

Forgive me dearest William, if I have written too strongly about it. I am vexed. I get I have firm faith that it will all be for the best. if you all return loved
