I wish he glad you should enjoy our more holiday while the weather is fine & all nature looking so lovely as it does here. I I expect to hear from you definitely tonight but as after that it will be too late to tell you what I have resolved upon, if you are not coming. (I hope you will not be so foolish as for a moment to entertain the thought of coming one day & returning the following morning.) I write now to say that I will return on Wednesday morning. Had I found myself welcome I wd. have remained until the end of the week. but Mr. Perkins has. time & thoughts are just as much limited given to the Home now as when with the first panic about Smulpan's house There has been no new Case & the woman first attacked is doing well I have enjoyed a thorough rest having done nothing except sit or that about above since I came Tomorrow if the day is fine Mrs. Foster is going to drive me to see some of the children who have for some them been distributed among the farmers. I look forward to this as a pleasure. I then Wednesday please God, I hope to resume my old home place. Thank Anne for her letter which was a great pleasure to me. She must excuse my not answering. I am not in a writing humour. It is rather touching that the man who takes the letters brings the way mail but does not again return to the village. but from what you said on Sat. I suppose there is little fear of crossing each others plans. I am still ignorant of G's movements
