

Feb. 14, 1876.

My dear Father,

I find my expenditure during January to have been £187.85. This is more satisfactory, but the difference of course results from the absence of any large sums spent. This will help to reduce the average of some of the preceding months in which the amount has exceeded £200.

I drew £30 (thirty pounds) on the 8th inst. to save the trouble of going soon again. This leaves a total balance of £120, to my credit here.

Your affectionate son

William.
