young lady with the beauty of imitation when with you this Stating that it was James said the end of April I had been considering what I was committed to do in consequence of the approaching winter and the prospect of having the pleasure of informing Annie & myself to write

Mr. Milne of Mr. Finneron's good luck, but they had been at Miss Lough attending a sale where they met Mr. P. & Mr. Gordon, & from them they learned the happy news.
Mr. Milne thinks Mr. P. seemed very pleased - & well he might James has just been telling me the sad news of Mr. W. H. Blair's transportation for fourteen years How short a time it seems since I met that foolish young man at your house dear girl, & oh to think that now he is doomed to many years banishment & such sufferings, - the thought makes me to tremble - God in his merciful goodness grant him fortitude

Dear
Miss
Lough
I am very glad to bear the trial. Mr. O'Keefe informed James of it. I pity his friends - not only has he brought disgrace upon ~~them~~ himself - but such disgrace - one may almost say on them. I mean his friends or rather relatives.

Let me thank you once more for all your kindness to me & to all my family. Believe me my dear girl, I do feel grateful by & to all your family. Would you managed your handsome gentlemen to your & their satisfaction. On considering a little about these above mentioned gentlemen's chasing hercays &c. together, if I mistake not one of them would give something to be managed for life by a certain Miss Munn don't you remember her the
