Dearest mama,

I have only a few moments for I left your letters till the last thinking that they did not need to go till tomorrow but alas early tonight is the last chance of catching the mail packet.

We got a whole budget of letters from you & other people, we were delighted to hear from you all. I had 9 letters was it not delightful, all at once too. better still: after so long expecting them.

Our tour on the continent has been delightful, splendid I am sure it has done me far more good than half a dozen years of school for it has shown me things & ideas which I never could have learned at home.

Your question about George I really can not answer as he has not known where to write to us, but I think that he was before we left convinced of the impracticability of it for him, though of course he had a longing to go & see as much as I did.

We shall soon be on our homeward way I am sure the Atlantic voyage will seem interminable I shall be dreadfully impatient I know.

Papa will tell you all our plans I presume, & I must answer Franklin Eva & William if I possibly can.

Your very loving daughter

Anne

My love to Mrs Browne & Mrs Payne & Remember me to the servants please. I shall give her my love & assure her I have transmitted hers to George safely to Scotland.

I am very sorry about May Kemner &
will write next mail.
