

with us to Edinburgh where we found some of our cousins, the others continued to drop in till about 10<sup>o</sup>. it is useless to attempt to describe them there are so many ten at Edinburgh. They were very kind & we had splendid times for we were quite a party without any outsiders.

I felt so much at home that if I had been nearer the completion of my general studies I should certainly have liked to stay a year for drawing & painting, for there are so many <sup>more</sup> advantages in a public institution than at home.

Every one declared that I was the very image of you. Mr Gill was up to see us & he informed Aunt Jane that I was just my mother over again. we got such a lot of presents since ours too. We had to get another box to hold all our purchases.

Papa & I are to go to Birmingham today as he has only invitations for himself & me, & he there will make arrangements for George following. Mrs Crow is very kind & the children nice, she has four, three girls & a boy.
