

Marchant Hotel
St. Paul. Minn.
April 9. 1891

Dear Maaman

I just drop this note by the way to let you know of my safe arrival here.

So far we have got along splendidly & been "on time" the whole way.

Yesterday from 8:30 Am to 10 P.M. had to be spent in Chicago & we managed to see a little of the place, though there do not appear to be any special points of interest it - & of course in doing So missed his passage However the next train came along in about 2 1/2 hours & we missed nothing of it - as we had no connector to make

Miss Cochrane & her brother were on the train from Montreal to Toronto, the former en route for London Ont. She had only a few hours in Montreal or would have called on Anna.

Please tell William not to take so much trouble about the filter-papers, or if he finds it a trouble not to do it at all. I fear they will be too late. I forgot to tell him that the quantitative I. paper is wrapped up in a white wooden box in the attic.

With love to Anna & all at home

Your affectionate son George

About it. On getting on board the evening train for St. Paul we found Capt Fetherstonhaugh on his way northward from New York & Philadelphia & so now must be a party of three. I fancy we are among the best - just - absolutely so.

A little adventure happened just before reaching Chicago.
Ashe managed to drop his pocket book off the train.
Fortunately just a few hundred yards before a station. He got off & walked back for
