My dear Walter,

I have your note written on Tuesday & enclosing pencil letter of Foster's which he wished you to copy & send to Dr Bourinot. I certainly think that it would be folly to entrust the manuscript to anyone at the present time & particularly to give it to anyone outside the family to

'Edet' in a perfunctory way, in fact I cannot quite understand Forbes wishing this to be done. As for Dr Bourne - nothing can be expected of him. He thinks himself so busy & is so full of his own literary importances, & the necessity of getting new books & papers of his own before the public - so self centered in fact, that the advice he would give would be that I had to give

In the least trouble & no thought.
 It seems to me that Father should trust the members of the family to do the right thing when the time may come for doing it. I will try, however, to get down on Saturday & talk the matter over, for it requires consideration & is somewhat complicated.

I am glad to know that Clare is getting on well.

Yours
 George
