Dear Lady Dawson,

I was not surprised to get the sad news this morning that your beloved husband had passed beyond your care. Yet, why should I say sad, when he has gone to claim the Victor's crown and to join the innumerable multitude of saints around the throne of God?

Mr. Finley unites with me in asking you to accept our heartfelt-sympathy in this time of sorrow & desolation. — What a comfort it must be to you to feel that your dear one is not lost — "Only gone before" to be forever with the Lord he so faithfully served, and to enjoy the unbroken fellowship of the Saints in glory.

He has gone from all pain and sorrow and has passed through the gate of death more than conqueror. It has seldom been my privilege to know such a pure and

Beautiful Christian character as Sir William, so full of humility and of success of purpose in serving his divine Master, Eternity alone will show the good he has accomplished and the lives he has influenced, and we must give God thanks for having lent to us, for a while, one with so many gifts & graces, and whose example will remain as a benediction always. — I am grateful to you for allowing me to look again upon his face before he passed into the great beyond. - Praying that our Father may comfort you, and pour into your heart much of that peace which passeth all understanding.

Believe me yours
with love and true sympathy
E. Kinley

P.S. Mr. Kinley has just returned from hearing Dr. B's preach.
He referred to Sir William's beautiful and unselfish life & example, & spoke of the vision of glory he would behold on his entrance into the Kingdom of our Lord, and your family he
