Mrs. Hunt

Lady Dawson "Angelic wife"

My dear Mrs. Danson

I am to very, very sorry to trouble you again, even by a line, - but I think my dear husband is coming quite round again, - about the Lyman house. - and I only wanted to ask, that, since his mind had still the inconsequence so natural to a sick man's, that Dr. Danson, when he saw him, would be so very kind as not to refer to Mr. Alexander's house at all unless my husband poised on the subject of houses! - All religious books I ever saw, let me tell you that we should not desire anything irordinately, - now, I am afraid that everything I wish for, I wish inordinately. - There is only one thing, it is safe to so long for, & hunger and thirst for, and that is righteousness. -

- My husband has given me yet more assurance of how dear I am to him. - I do like to think of Dr. Danton calling you 'an angelic wife!' - I like to dwell on it in my own mind, - but I need not say how it is buried there forever.
- I mean how sacred it every word you said to me.

Most sincerely and affectionately yours
Anna K. L. Hunt
