My Dear Anna,

I don't know whether you will be at home or not to get this note, but write it
nevertheless trusting
that it will find its way.

I intend to start for home next Sunday
afternoon, arriving there

if all goes well
Tuesday Morning I
need not repeat all
my reasons, which I have given in Hammer
letter.

We have been having very fine weather here
lately neither too hot
or too cold.

I hope that you enjoyed yourself very much at the Abbots, and had lots of boating, &c.

I have been quite troubled by Papa's and Mamma's great anxiety about my coming home alone.

Please try and persuade them that it is quite unnecessary.

I will be quite glad to get home again, though I like this place very much, and have spent a very pleasant summer.

Please excuse this.

writing as I have a wretched pen. I suppose you will say that you never saw one to suit me yet. But really this one is particularly bad.

There are very few people in the hotel now and will be fewer tomorrow.

Give my love to all at home, and with best
love for yourself

Believe me your affectionate

George
