Dear Anna,

I am at the Laboratory and have only a few moments to write. I have heard nothing further about
the Toronto business, so much as I should like to meet you there, am hoping that it will not be necessary for me to go, as absence
just now would sadly interfere with my work.
George expects to go and also William and no doubt you will see them both.

Poor Mary Hunt is very low to-day and supposed to be dying. Of course she may rally, but it does not seem at all likely. I fear that returning to Montreal was not a wise move. Dr Hunt was to have lectured to the students in Applied Science this evening, but of course the lecture has been postponed.

The children are all well excepting Boyzie who has still a cold. He went out yesterday but to-day I have kept him in the house, as it is rather cold.

You need not distress yourself about him as Lily is very careful & he gets every possible attention. Notwithstanding his cold he is as jolly as ever and now that Mamma is away I have become quite a lion in his eyes. The moving book continues to delight him beyond everything and he wants to see it half a dozen times a day.

Eric, Edith & Clara were to have gone to Mrs J. P. Redpaths on Tuesday, but the visit was put off until to-day. They are to go there directly from the gymnasium, in gymnasium costume.

On Friday I am to dine at the Campbells and afterwards to go to a concert with Miss C & Eva.

The dinner to Dr Stevenson is to take place on the 1st of November and will probably be one of the largest dinners ever given in the City. Ladies are to be invited as well as gentlemen.

But I must attend to my class. Give my kindest greetings to Dr Miss Wilson & believe me Yours fondly
 John Ford Bernard
